

Expand

Close

http://www.theadvocate.com/acadiana/article\_48565532-1a3b-11e7-b0b4-bf92c6fed3b7.html

Controversial Bayou Bridge Pipeline project wins DNR approval; other permits still required

BY STEVE HARDY | SHARDY@THEADVOCATE.COM APR 5, 2017 - 3:06 PM

---

Steve Hardy

The controversial Bayou Bridge oil pipeline has won approval from Louisiana regulators, though more will need to lend their support before the project can break ground.

The state Department of Natural Resources on Wednesday granted a coastal use permit, a decision instantly decried by several environmental groups.

The pipeline is envisioned to carry crude oil between Lake Charles and St. James Parish. Proponents have said Bayou Bridge would be far safer than carting oil via trucks, trains and boats, and an industry-funded LSU study estimates it would generate $829 million in economic activity, mostly during construction.

Story Continued Below

Conservationists have opposed the pipeline, saying it would damage south Louisiana wetlands and put wildlife and residents at risk of oil-contaminated water.

RELATED

---

Showdown in Napoleonville: Supporters, opponents clash over Bayou Bridge Pipeline proposal

The proposed pipeline is 163 miles long, but DNR has jurisdiction over the last 17 miles, the only stretch to dip into Louisiana's large coastal zone. Department spokesman Patrick Courreges said regulators wanted to ensure there would be no net loss of wetlands. So if oil executives build on swamp lands in one area, they'll have to conserve an equal amount elsewhere.

The exact location of the mitigation land was not clear Wednesday, but DNR determined "the applicant has provided sufficient justification for the activities under consideration in this (coastal use permit,)" according to a notification.

Scott Eustis, of the Gulf Restoration Network, criticized the state's limited focus. His group called on DNR to require the pipeline company to dig deeper under Bayou Lafourche to safeguard the water supply against any leaks.

"We don't understand how DNR can't consider — isn't considering — the safety of the drinking water for 300,000 people in Louisiana," he said.

"We're wondering how the DNR can approve a permit without considering the St. James community," Eustis said. "... We don't understand how their need for public safety was not considered."

Though Bayou Bridge has DNR's blessing, it still needs the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to sign off on the design before construction can start. DEQ is still going through hours of testimony and some 20,000 public comments submitted since a public hearing in January, said spokesman Greg Langley. Upon review, the department will determine whether to award a water quality certificate.

The Army Corps will perform the final check to determine whether the pipeline would impact federal projects like levees as well as large navigable waterways or wetlands hydrology, said public affairs officer Ricky Boyett.

Darryl Malek-Wiley, a senior organizing representative for the Sierra Club, said he is "not impressed" by the DNR decision.

The state is "very laissez-faire toward protecting the environment," he said, and the local Army Corps office "has a history of rubber stamping permits."

The Sierra Club is considering all its options, including taking the matter to court, but the organization still has to review the various regulatory documents, he said.

A number of officers with Energy Transfer, the company seeking to build the pipeline, did not return calls and emails seeking comment. When they presented the project to DNR in February, they emphasized the economic impact and the relative safety of the pipeline design, saying equipment would feature remote-controlled valves and be tested by first running water through at 125 percent of the operating capacity for eight hours.

---

FOLLOW STEVE HARDY ON TWITTER, @STEVERHARDY.

You May Like

Sponsored Links by Taboola

New Orleans, Louisiana: This Fast-Growing Boston Company Is Disrupting a $200 Billion Industry

EverQuote Insurance Quotes

Louisiana Homeowners Born Between 1953 & 1983 Must Read This

Comparisons.org Quotes

Florida Millionaire Predicting 'Cash Panic' In 2017

DailyWealth

The Surprising Reason Behind Dollar Shave Club's Change

Dollar Shave Club

Unnerving WW2 Photos They Won't Show In Textbooks

Curious Historian

How Car Dealers Get Rid of Unsold Inventory

Auto Deals Ace

How Cruise Ships Fill Their Unsold Cabins

Cruise Deals Ace

If you own a computer you must try this game!

Vikings: Free Online Game

You May Like

Sponsored Links by Taboola

Louisiana Homeowners Born Between 1953 & 1983 Must Read This

Comparisons.org Quotes

Florida Millionaire Predicting 'Cash Panic' In 2017

DailyWealth

New Orleans, Louisiana Residents Born Between 1936 and 1966 Wish They Knew This Earlier

EverQuote Insurance Quotes

The Surprising Reason Behind Dollar Shave Club's Change

Dollar Shave Club

She Gave A Homeless Man A Job For One Day, But Two Weeks Later He's Still There

TheBuzzTube

War Tactics: Can You Pass the Military Defense Quiz?

HowStuffWorks.com

How To Pay Off Your House At A Furious Pace If You Owe Less Than $300-625k

LowerMyBills

How Cruise Ships Fill Their Unsold Cabins

Cruise Deals Ace

---

MORE FROM THE ADVOCATE

- Ex-Destrehan High teacher Kimberly Naquin pleads guilty to sex with student
- Teen clothing retailer closing 14 Louisiana stores; 400 nationwide
- Covington, Chalmette, St. James and West St. John fall short in first round upset bids
- Baton Rouge man accused of raping woman, inappropriately touching, interacting with her daughter
- 'The Voice': Louisiana's Hunter Plake picks up speed, breaks into iTunes charts

MORE FROM OUR PARTNERS

- Business Insider-The Sheets You Need (Brooklinen)
- Why Blue Apron is Cheaper than the Grocery Store (Blue Apron)
- Why Amazon Channels is a "better value" than Netflix or Hulu (Business Insider)
- JC Penney's Closing Hundreds of Stores (Bankrate)
- If You Own A Home - You Are Entitled To A Federal $4,240 ! (The Better Finance)

Recommended by

THIS WEEK'S CIRCULARS

HOVER FOR CIRCULAR

HOVER FOR CIRCULAR

HOVER FOR CIRCULAR

HOVER FOR CIRCULAR

